

ISLAMIC CLEANLINESS - IMPURITIES

النجاسات

Objectives >>>

Students should:

- Be reminded of the importance of cleanliness in Islam
- Be introduced to the concept of naāsah (Islamic uncleanliness) and Ṭahārah (Islamic cleanliness)
- Be introduced to examples of common najis (unclean) things
- Understand that najāsah is transferred through moisture and by direct contact
- Participate in an activity where they identify things which have become najis

JURISPRUDENCE

LEVEL 1

Lesson 1: Islamic Uncleanliness

In the previous classes we have talked about how important it is to be clean.

Do you remember what the Prophet (saw) said about clean people?

Today, we are going to learn about keeping clean and staying away from things which are islamically unclean.

NAJIS THINGS

Najis things are those which are dirty and might cause harm to us and hurt us if we do not stay away from them. Allah (SWT) has ordered us to stay away from these Najis things and to clean ourselves if we do touch them.

Class activity

Which of the following things is ṭāhir and which is najis? Put a tick next to the ṭāhir (clean) things and a cross next to the najis (unclean) ones.

Water

Faeces

Pigs

Dogs

Mud

Blood

You're right! The following things are najis:

- Blood
- Faeces
- Urine
- Dogs and pigs

The other pictures were of things that are ṭāhir or clean.

DO THESE THINGS MAKE US NAJIS?

If we touch any of these things and if our hand or that najis thing is wet, then our hand becomes najis too. But if we touch them while they are dry and if our hands are dry as well, then our hands stay clean and ṭāhir.

If we do become najis because of these things, we should wash that part of our body which has become naji. We need to wash with water. For example, if I cut my hand while playing sport and there is blood on my arm, I have to wash the blood off with water until my arm is clean again.

Class activity

Your teacher will take you to the washroom and go through some examples with you.

- If your hand was najis with blood, how would you wash it to make it ṭāhir?
- If a dog licked your hand, how would you wash it to make it ṭāhir?
